Moments of reflection

The shortest moments,
Are the most incomparable,,
They cause you torments,
And leave you unrepairable,

They will lure you in,
Only to leave you gaping,
They will soon be forgotten,
And will have you searching,

Searching for a memory,
Grasping to keep it,
Until you writhe in agony,
Wondering if it will fit,

In your broken heart,
Broken from solitude,
Stinging like a dart,
Waiting to be clued,

You sit quietly,
Frozen in time like a statue,
Until finally,
It's your cue.

You're free.
